While blockbuster shows abound in New York this month, the city's galleries are also fertile ground for finding fresh works by younger generations of artists. From impressive solos by N. Dash and Eva Kot'átková, to a group show dedicated to China's youngest generation of artists, below we highlight 21 shows that should not be missed this May.

The New York-based Madere has focused his artistic approach on avoiding the conventions of leading contemporary artists. His effusive installations incorporate dozens of materials—from marble dust to PVC to tinsel—and reflect an emphasis on aesthetics, perception, and energy. Following his show at The Whitney last fall, this solo exhibition marks his first at a gallery.
