11 Artists Poised to Have a Breakout Year By The Cut

For our Art and Design issue, New York has been examining the art world's recent past – tracing the identity-politics revolution; catching up with Richard Prince, the Warhol of the Instagram age – and it's present, as we sit down with James Franco to let him make a case for his art and get a crash course in today's market from a Sotheby's advisor. And now we look to the future: ahead, 11 artists, selected by senior art critic Jerry Saltz, who are poised to have breakout years, along with a sampling of their work.

Jared Madere, Sculptor, 29

An artist who, in 2014, bought, lived, and showed art in a huge old RV, Madere creates his own sprawling art of moving parts, air machines, and assembled materials in a jamboree of sculptural smarts.
